GREG LEWIS

Greg has a well-earned reputation as a trusted advisor, executive coach, and developer of leaders. He works closely with individuals and teams in the corporate, non-profit, and public sectors to unleash and maximize their full potential and effectiveness based on 20+ years as a management consultant and educator.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

As a partner in McKinsey & Company’s Healthcare and Public Sector Practices, Greg worked with a wide variety of C-suite executives on issues such as strategic planning, growth, lean operations, and innovation as well as organizational health, top-team alignment, leadership development, and personal effectiveness. Greg further honed his coaching skills as McKinsey’s Global Dean of Faculty, overseeing a faculty of 300 current and alumni partners and external coaches in delivering ~6,000 person weeks per year of leadership development training to McKinsey’s consultants around the world. Today, Greg focuses his coaching on individuals and executive teams and designing and delivering tailored executive learning programs in the healthcare, insurance, consulting, consumer goods, manufacturing, financial services, education, and non-profit sectors.

In addition to his client work with non-profit Boards of Directors, Greg is also an active board member. He served for six years on the Board of CURE (Citizens United for Research in Epilepsy), guiding their growth and two CEO searches. He currently serves on the Boards of the Joyce Ivy Foundation and School Year Abroad, both focused on educational opportunities for outstanding high school students, and on the Board of his local synagogue in Ann Arbor, Temple Beth Emeth.

EDUCATION

Greg earned his undergraduate degree in History and Science magna cum laude from Harvard University. He received his MBA with High Distinction from the University of Michigan Ross School of Business where he focused on strategy and entrepreneurship. He continues to teach problem solving, dialog skills, engagement management, trust-based relationships, and inspirational leadership as an alumni faculty member in McKinsey’s leadership development programs. He is also a part-time Lecturer at the Ross School of Business in Business Administration and Strategy and a coach in Ross’s Executive Education Program.
